

Questions!

Over thirty-five years ago, a shy, introverted and very unsure teenager began to ask questions about life.

Now, the questions look like this:

Why am I here?
Who am I?
Is this all there is?

Then, the questions were just a collage of uncertainty and confusion that seemed to surface at different intervals between morning and night.

CONFUSION—UNCERTAINTY—not just confined to teenagers are they?

We live in an age where confusion and uncertainty reign. They pull and tear at the very fabric of our society and they seek to mold us into mounds of jello – wiggling and jiggling with the winds of change and often melting when the temperatures get too high.

Even though we might try to hide from them, every person ultimately has to deal with the issues of confusion and uncertainty. And every person must address the big questions of life.

Let me invite you to gather again this weekend to address the big questions of life, and to find the answers from the One who created life!

In Christ's Love,

Pastor Greg
